

Frequently Asked Questions

Who Can Apply?

The CWA Next Gen Agriculture program is open to any Saskatchewan resident aged 18-39. At least 6 of the 8 successful applicants will be involved in primary agricultural production.

Who will my mentor be?

CWA's selection process will pair mentees and mentors based on existing skills, interests, abilities and desired outcomes. CWA's mentor partners will be a cross section of leaders in the fields of grain/pulses/oilseed production, livestock, value-added processing, and entrepreneurship.

What is the selection process?

Applicants will apply online and have their applications considered by a CWA selection committee. Successful applicants will then be paired with an appropriate mentor and a specifically designed 18-month mentorship curriculum beginning in February 2019.

What will the program include?

CWA is in the process of designing an overall, outcome-based mentorship program that will include skill training, board & governance training, industry learning, networking opportunities and 1x1 time with mentors. CWA Next Gen Agriculture will fund the required travel, training, expenses and related costs associated with the mentorship program.
