Canadian Western Agribition's Grain Expo Returns in 2013

Canadian Western Agribition (CWA) is pleased to announce the return of Grain Expo, a two-day conference featuring a line-up of industry speakers and an industry focused trade show. The conference will take place November 12 and 13 at the Queensbury Salon, Evraz Place, Regina, Saskatchewan.

The 2012 Grain Expo exceeded organizers expectations with over 500 grain producers taking part in the inaugural event. The success of the conference can be attributed to the post-harvest timing of the event and the pragmatic presentations of the powerful line-up of speakers.

Organizers have allocated more space for the 2013 Grain Expo in anticipation of an even bigger audience for the conference. This year's conference will feature an expanded trade show component targeting grain specific products and services.

"Agribition has grown beyond just cattle." said Reed Andrew, President of CWA. "The success of last year's Grain Expo speaks to the show's ability to deliver a quality event to a targeted group of sophisticated grain producers. It's only going to get bigger."

This year's Grain Expo speaker topics include: Herbicide Resistance Management, Applying Science to Improve Canola Yields, and Grain Marketing Updates.

"Canadian Western Agribition takes place right after harvest. It's the perfect place for the industry to compare notes on last year's crop and start making decisions on next year's purchases." said Kirby Engele, Operations Manager at Young's Equipment.
